Executives get help with career change

Dan Aronoff's day job, lining up potential franchisees and securing franchises, brings him in contact with lots of executives considering a career change.

ARONOFF

Some are victims of corporate downsizing; others are just exploring options or considering changing jobs. Some want to open their own businesses. All tend to have thick Rolodexes and full Palm Pilots, and the ability to help one another reach career goals.

Gray Hair Management was born February 2006 to help achieve that. Attendance is kept confidential. Most attendees have 15 years of work experience or more.
